M'KINLEY STILL CABLING.

BEGGING WITH CHINESE OFFICIALS.

Wants Them to Give Assurances That the Ministers Are Alive, and That Communication Will be Opened Up---Loopholed Houses Destroyed---How the Soldiers Lined Up in the Fight.

By Wire to the Telegram

Washington, Aug. 9.—The despatch sent last night by the administration through Minister Wu to the Chinese government, is not in the form of an ultimatum. It insists, however, as before, on the following demands by the President:

"One—I most solemnly urge upon Your Majesty's government to give public assurance whether the foreign ministers are alive, and if so, in what condition.

"Two—To put the diplomatic reports of the powers in immediate and free communication with their respective governments, and to remove all dangers to their lives and liberty.

"Three—To place the imperial authorities of China in communication with the relief expedition so that co-operation may be secured between them for the liberation of the legations and the protection of foreigners and the restoration of order."

LOOPHOLED HOUSES BURNED.

Shanghai, Aug. 9—There is confirmation of the reported capture of the New Chwang road. The native city and houses which were loopholed and used as forts have been burned to the ground. This is regarded as an important victory for the Czar's troops, as it removes an important barrier in their progress in the advance from Port Arthur to Pekin.

AUSTRIANS DECLINE TO LEAVE, TOO.

Vienna. Aug 9—The Foreign office has received a dispatch from the secretary of the Austrian legation at Pekin dated the fourth. The legation was burned June 21st, it says, and since June 20 "we have defended ourselves with the French detachment. The French legation, which has been under continuous shell and rifle fire and part of the legation was blown up by mines. Since July 16th the attacks have been without effect. The Chinese government is trying to induce us to leave Tien-Tsin, promising us safe escort, but we have heretofore declined the offer."

THE FIGHTING SUNDAY BY ALL

London, Aug. 9—A dispatch from Tien-Tsin dated the fifth says that in fighting on that day the British, Japanese and Americans advanced on the right bank of the river, with the Russians, Germans, and French on the other side. The Russians had five hundred killed, the British fifty. The other forces lost heavily but the number is not known.

Today's Sparks From the Wires.

Lord Roberts cables that Dewet has crossed the Vaal, and a part of his force is engaged by Methuen and Kitchener's horse, who are close after him. Over 4,000 Boers have been captured bp Hunter on the way to Ceylon. The British garrison captured by the Boers numbered 300.

Governor Murphy, of Arizona, has been telegraphed that the President today reprieved until October 5, the Halderman brothers, sentenced to be hanged at Tombstone, tomorrow.

The U. S. transport McPherson, which left Santiago August 2, with 9 officers and 402 men of the fifth infantry, which was stranded four days on Future Island, arrived at New York this morning.

KING HUMBERT'S FUNERAL.

Witnessed at Rome This Morning by 300,000 People—Fifty Persons Injured in the Crush.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Rome, August 9.—The funeral of King Humbert today was a most impressing spectacle. King Victor Emanuel followed immediately after the coffin. The former queen, Margherite, and a number of princesses awaited the cortege at the Pantheon. A slight panic occurred here, but order was soon restored, and the train bearing the body arrived at Rome at 6:30 this morning. Twenty thousand soldiers lined the streets. Three hundred thousand people were present. A sudden movement among the crowd in the Rue Nazinale was apparently the cause of the temporary panic. Fifty persons were injured in the crush which ensued.

NO NOMINATION MADE.

Republican Congressiooal Convention Adjourns Back to Greensboro--To Catch the Gold Democrats.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Durham, N. C., Aug. 9.—The Republican Congressional Convention for this district met at noon today and adjourned without making any nomination until Wednesday, September 5th, when the aggregation will again come together in Greensboro. This action was taken in the hope of coming to some understanding with the gold Democrats.

Sheriff Donahough, of Caswell, was chairman of the convention, with J. M. Sikes, of Greensboro, as secretary. The convention was controlled by J. Zeb. Waller, of Burlington.

The second postponement of the nomination has made the Joyce men hot They say that if the convention had transacted the business for which it was called today Mr. Joyce woufd undoubtedly have received the nomination. O. A. Starbuck, W. B. Steele and Roscoe Mitchell made a strong fight to have the nomination made. P. J. O'Brien, of Durham, and J. Zeb Waller led those who advocated postponement.

John W. Graham, of Hillsboro, is spoken of for the nomination on September 5th.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

Republicans Met in Durham Today to Nominate Candidates for Congress and an Elector.

The Republican Congressional convention for this district met in Durham today to nominate a candidate for Congress and an elector. It will be remembered that the convention met in Greensboro in June for this purpose, but an adjournment was taken until today in order that Judge Adams, who was then a candidate for Governor might receive the Congressional nomination. It is now said that this gentleman has decided to run for no more offices at present and has instructed his leaders to see that his name is not presented.

In addition to the delegates—Messrs. W. B. Steele and O. A. Starbuck—the following gehtlemen left here this morning for Durham to attend the convention: Messrs. J. R. Joyce, T. S. Malloy and W. F. Trogdon, of Reidsville; Sheriff Donahough, of Caswell; Roscoe Mitchell, of Washington; J. Zeb. Waller, the "red headed statesman from Alamance," and R. D. Douglas.

Some of the delegates who were interviewed said that Mr. J. R. Joyce, the revenue agent at Reidsville, would receive the Congressional nomination, while the empty honor of the nomination for McKinley elector would go to Mr. R. D. Douglas, of this city. Both of these gentlemen are said to be very anxious to receive the nominations.

A WORTHY MOVEMENT.

An Organization Designed to Elevate and Uplift the Colored People.

The movement represented by Rev. L. T. Christmas, the colored minister who has been in Greensboro working among the people of his race for several days, is apparently a worthy one. The Co-operative Missionary Crusade, of which he is secretary and general organizer, has as its main object the education and uplifting of the colored people socially, morally and industrially. The movement has met with encouragement wherever it has been presented, and has accomplished much good.

Rev. Christmas says the idea of the association is to provide such instruction for the people of his race as will make them better and more acceptable citizens. They are trained to right ways of living and thinking and encouraged to better equip themselves for life.

The need of an organization of this sort among the colored people is apparent, and it is encouraging to know that many of the leaders of the race are interested in its success.

Improvements on Teleppone Exchanges.

The Greensboro and Burlington telephone exchanges are to be greatly improved in the near future. Mr. T. J. McAdoo, the proprietor, left today for Cleveland. Ohio, and Chicago to purchase new switch boards and other apparatus. These improvements will add much to the efficiency of the exchanges.

Mr. McAdoo will be gone about two weeks, stopping at Atlantic City on his return.

EDUCATION IN OUR STATE.

DR. WHITSETT AT THE INSTITUTE.

Music Discussed by Mr. Hammer—Prof. Wharton on Creating Interest Among Pupils and Prof. Alderman on Arithmetic Science—Mrs. Cunningham Speaks on Teaching the Effects of Strong Drink.

Every true man and woman in North Carolina should be proud of the admirable Teachers' Institute being held in Greensboro. Day after day the interest increases.

Today's session was opened by Mr. D. P. Clapp, one of the eastern Guilford teachers. Dr. Whitsett then took up the subject of "Education in North Carolina" in his usual instuctive manner, and showed that the public school has a place in our educational system, also its relation to our private schools, colleges, University and technical schools. He also spoke of the tendency of the private schools to advance their curriculum into the freshman and sophomore years of the college, also the tendency of the universities, technical schools and seminaries to take the student from the high school, leaving the college with only one or two years of work and oftentimes not that much. North Carolina has about 600,000 public school children to be educated by about 8,000 teachers. Very few of these come from the college. For many years yet the private school will continue to be the norma school of the public school teachers.

After this valuable lecture the teachers were given a short recess.

The subject of "Music" was then taken up by Mr. V. P. Hammer, of Deep River, and Superintendent Wharton. These gentlemen showed the necessity and advantage of vocal music, its influence upon the discipline and interest in the school. Prof. Wharton spoke of the best means of creating interest among the pupils of the schools. He drew an illustration from the fact that it is necessary to go to the very foundation of the principles of simple interest and analyze the process in its logical order.

Prof. W. F. Alderman followed Prof. Wharton in a short talk on arithmetical science.

One of the many visitors was Mrs. James Cunningham. She made a very impressive talk on the law on our statutes requiring the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and narcotics to be taught in our public schools. She spoke of liquor as being one of the most terrible curses of our country. She spoke also of the necessity of teaching the child the effect of strong drink and its ruinous tendencies. Statutes similar to our own have been enacted by all the American States except two. This noble work has been largely accomplished by Mary H. Hunt. Mrs. Cunningham is a member of the W. C. T. U., and interested our te chers very much.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Prof. Wyche took up his subject of literature and handled it in a masterly manner. He told of the capture of Troy by Greeks and the wanderings of Ulysses, and his final safe home-coming to his wife, Penelope. Prof. Wyche is a very delightful story teller and our teachers were captured by his charming manner. We feel sure that Prof. Wyche will be called to many of the schools this year to tell the children of Uncle Remus and his many other delightful stories.

Dr. Whitsett next took up the correlation of human knowledge and showed that all our learning bears a close relationship. Human knowledge may be divided as follows: Theology, or the study of the infinite spirit, evidences of Christianity, dogmatism, etc; psychology, or the study of the finite spirit. To this classification belongs psychology, metaphysics, mental philosophy, etc History, or the work of the finite spirit. To this classification belongs language, law, jurisprudence civics, literature, etc. Natural Philosophy, or the work of the infinite spirit. To this branch of study belongs chemistry, biology, geology, zoology, botany and all the natural sciences, mathematics, or the idea of the finite spirint, concerning time, space, etc. To this classification belongs geometry, trigonometry, arithmetic, calculus, algebra, surveying, etc. Dr. Whitsett said this classification of human knowledge has the sanction of the world's leading educators.

Owing to lack of time, the Teachers' Association was delayed until tomorrow. The committee appointed to select officers for the Asociation reported Prof. J. Y. Joyner as their choice for president; Prof. L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College, vic-president, and Mr. H. B. Smith, of Whitset, as secretary. The Association will be fully organized tomorrow

It is hoped that the court house will be filled with people tomorrow, as a treat is in store for every one who attends. Hon. Charles H. Mebane, State Superintendent Public Instruction, and several other excellent speakers will address the audience.

The institute is a great success and the means of much greatly needed improvement among the teachers.

UNIVERSITY ALUMNI.

An Association of the Former Students in Guilford to be Formed—The Names of the Alumni.

A movement has been set on foot in Greensboro to form an asociation of the alumni and former students of the University of North Carolina residing in Guilford county. The promoters are meeting with encouragement, and an organization will probably be effected at some time in the near future. There are a large number of the former students of the University in Greensboro and Guilford county, and a strong association can be formed. One of the objects of the organization will be to bring the former students together in a reunion at least once a year.

The following are the names of the University alumni in Guilford, so far as they could be obtained. If any person has been omitted he will please report his name to The Telegram:

Telegram Children's Bank

Tomorrow we will state the plan for the Ten Dollar distribution THE TELEGRAM is preparing for. It is only for the interest and amusement of the children, and there'll be some fun. It will cost nothing, and all are invited to take part. Look out for the plan tomorrow.

A MARK OF RESPECT.

Resolutions Adopted by Pythians in Memory of John W. Cates.

Whereas, It has pleased the Supreme Architect of the universe, in His all-wise providence, to remove from our midst our worthy member and esteemed brother, John W. Cates, we esteem it a pleasant privilege to bear testimony to his worth as a citizen, faithfulness and fidelity as a Pythian; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That in his death the community has lost a good citizen, the city of Greensboro a true and faithful officer, Greensboro Lodge No. 80, Knights of Pythias, a true and loyal member, and his wife and children a loving husband and kind father.

2. That while we mourn the death of our esteemed brother, and deeply sympathize with the bereaved wife and children, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be published in the daily papers of our city, that a copy be sent to the Carolina Pythian for publication, that a copy be sent to the wife of our deceased brother, and that they be spread on the minutes of the lodge.

Will Take No Part in It.

Raleigh Post.

The Post will take no part in the attempt to revive the negro issue. That was the issue upon which the recent contest was waged and won by the white people irrespective of party. It was vital then, involving the home-life and home-government of the people. The negro submits to the situation, and the highest dictates of humanity, to say nothing of other reasons, suggest that he be allowed to rest in peace, go about his daily vocation undisturbed, and that every opportunity be given him to make of himself a contented as well as a useful citizen. His opportunity for disturbing the white people, in the early future certainly, or the opportunity for any one or power to use him to disturb has been reduced to the minimum. He realizes this as fully as others, and therefore, in accordance with our promises as well as the demands of higher interests, he should be allowed to pass from view as a political issue. The people who voted for the amendment on the 2nd inst. believed they were settling this issue, and the attempt to revive it, in the absence of all and the slightest disposition on the part of the negro to resent it, will not only hurt those and their cause who attempt it, but will be regarded by many as a violation of the pledges and promises of the late campaign.

There are other and weighty issues involved in the fall election which the people will wish to discuss and hear discussed. And the negro is not one of them, thank Heaven.

Will Locate in Greensboro.

Mr. W. G. Fitzpatrick, of Greenbockville, Va., has decided to locate in Greensboro. He is a young man of considerable means and will make a valuable citizen. He was attracted to Greensboro by L. H. Sturgis & Co., the progressive real estate dealers.

GIFTS TO THE A. & M. COLLEGE.

EQUIPPED BY MANUFACTURERS.

The Machinery for the Industrial Department Cost the College Only the Freight. Vance Monument Unveiling, August 22. Different Explanation of Revenue Seizures--Coast Line Pays Its Taxes.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram

Raleigh, Aug. 9 —The Democratic convention of this (4th) Congressional district will be held here either August 30th, or September 6th. The majority for the constitutional amendment in the district was about 6,000. There are not a few aspirants for the nomination. It is said that Jenkins, of Chatham county, who was two years ago the Fusion nominee, will again be an aspirant for that very empty honor.

The insurance commission left yesterday for Greensboro to investigate a recent fire in a store, some circumstances being said to be quite suspicious.

Revenue officers explain the remarkable fewness of seizures of illicit distilleries during the past two months by saying the smaller streams are so low that they do not furnish enough water; that in fact most of them are dry. The moonshiners have to have a steady supply of cool water. The Democrats say the revenue officers have given very little attention to moonshiners during the past two or three months, but that they have devoted all their time to politics.

The extensive annex to the State museum has been accepted. It cost $17,000. As yet it is not furnished. The contract for the furniture, heating and lighting has not been awarded.

The State Farmers' Alliance is called to meet at Hillsboro in annual session next Tuesday. W. A. Graham is the president, T. B. Parker business agent and secretary, and J. W. Denmark chairman of the executive committee.

The Atlantic Coast Line has paid to the State Treasurer its taxes, which by order of Judge Simonton of the U. S. Circuit Court are upon the basis of the assessment of 1898.

Cotton in this section is fine, admirably well fruited and with bolls of very large size. A big crop seems now assurred.

There will be no encampment of the State troops this year. The funds were not sufficient to permit it.

The details of the ceremonies of the unveiling of Vance Statute in the capitol square here August 22nd, have all been arranged. Thomas S. Kenan will be chief Marshal. The State guard is invited through the adjutant general. The Confederate veterans, through their commanders and the editors in the State, are also given a special invitation. The procession will be formed at the city hall and march to the capitol square where at 12:30 sharp the ceremonies will begin Chief Marshal Kenan will introduce the orator of the day, Richard H. Battle, Esq., who during the civil war was Governor Vance's private secretary.

In the little mountain county of Graham the constitutional amendment was defeated by 23 votes, while the Democratic ticket was given 30 majority.

The State Agricultural and Mechanical College here will have three new departments next term—textile, electrical engineering and mechanical engineering. The textile department machinery, very complete, will be installed in what has been the chapel in the basement of the main building. This machinery is almost all the gift of New England manufacturers, mainly through their agents at Charlotte, and Prof. Wilson, formerly of Baltimore, who is at the head of this new and important department, secured it within thirty days. The only cost is the freight. The Whiting Machine Company, the Draper Company and the Sacs & Petty Company, all of Boston, made large gifts, as did the D. A. Tompkins Company of Charlotte and the Jones & Laflin Co., of Pennsylvania. The machinery embraces all that is essential, and there are four car loads of it. The gifts are specially appreciated by the State, the College and the cotton mill owners. Hand looms have been ordered for use in designing. The College will have a manual training department. To this 40 students have already been admitted, for the term beginning September 7th and there will be 40 more.

BUTLER HAD A BODY GUARD.

Travelled About With an Escort and Went to His Home.

Wilmington Special to Charlotte Observer.

Senator Butler, in going home from Raleigh yesterday, had to pass through Warsaw, and being fearful that violence might be offered him, he had five of his lieutenants from Raleigh with him and eight others joined the Senator at Clinton and went on to Clinton with him. Citizens of Warsaw are positive that Butler's companions were armed, for while they saw no weapons, suspicious "lumps" were noted on the persons of these men Butler was surrounded by the body guard of 13 until the train left, all of them going on to Clinton together.

Warsaw is recognized as the centre of the red shirt movement, and was the scene of a big Democratic gathering several days before the election, and these reasons, together with the feeling of political hostility against the Populist Senator, doubtless caused Butler to put himself under the care of thirteen of the faithful. There was no disposition whatever on the part of the citizens of Warsaw to do him injury, nearly all of them now having a feeling of pity toward the Senator.

WHAT'S IN A NAME ?

Optician, Optist. Opticist, Oculist!

This poor letter O is being overworked nowadays to find some uniform title for the man who fits glasses scientifically. Some objection to the word optician is found, in the fact that every peddler an street fakir who sells glasses may assume title, but the same objection applies to the other names, in greater or less degree. We, ourselves, find it matters very little what one calls oneself, so one's work is well performed. We have fitted glasses to a large number of eyes in this vicinity. Our work speaks for itself and our customers speak for us.

VICTIM OF HER HUSBAND'S ANGER.

A Woman, After Suffering for Days From the Razor of a Jealous and Enraged Husband, Dies---How the Man and Woman, in the Death Struggle Fell From a Window.

Richmond Times.

Mrs. Lulu Kuhn d ed last night at 9 o'clock at the Retreat for the Sick, where she has been under treatmeat since being brought to Richmond five weeks ago from Philadelphia, where the horrible occurrence took place. Her injuries caused her death.

Since arriving at the Retreat little hope of her recovery had been entertained, and within the last ten days her decline has been most noticeable. The story of this tragedy is still fresh in the minds of all. Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn were both well known here, she being the daughter of Mrs. S. S. Hall, of No. 305 Belvidere Street, and he the son of Mr. L. P. Kuhn, a well-known engineer on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, living at No. 1008 West Marshall street. They were married about three years ago, and soon afterwards moved to Philadelphia. On April 24th last, Kuhn, incensed by jealousy, as his wife claimed, and thinking, as he stated, that she was receiving too much attention from other men, attempted to kill himself and his wife. Soon after the affair they gave to the newspapers the following version of the tragedy:

Mrs. Kuhn said, "jealousy was the cause of it all. We have been married for about three years, and my husband has always been jealous of me. He didn't want me to have any amusement, and didn't want me to go out during the evening. Last Sunday night he beat me. I went out last Saturday evening with another lady in the house, and he beat me for that.

"Last night I was out for a short time, and when I came in I was afraid to go to my room I felt as though something was going to happen. My landlady persuaded me that I was acting foolishly. Then I went to my room and undressed. At that time my husband was in bed. When I got into bed he asked me where I had been, and I told him. He did not believe me, and accused me of having been out with some man. This I denied. Then he got up and started towards the bed. I screamed and he sprang at me and tried to cut my throat. I threw up my hand and caught the blade. He jumped up, went over to the door and locked it. As he did so, I ran toward the window and he followed me. The next thing I rember, we were both falling from the window."

Kuhn's version of the story was as follows: "My wife and I have not been living harmoniously for several weeks. She has been accepting the attentions of other men against my will. Last night she went to the theatre, and I waited for her to come home. Without mincing matters I told her that her conduct was displeasing to me and that she would have to change My wife's answer was exasperating. She told me she would do as she pleased and that I needn't interfere with her affairs.

"Going to the bureau, I took a razor from the drawer, and there, before my wife's eyes cut a big gash in the right side of my throat. This maddened me and I rushed for my wife standing against the window, intending to kill her first. She warded off the blow I aimed at her neck and the razor grazed her chin.

"Meanwhile she had raised the window and called 'murder!' I seized her around the body to stifle her cries and we struggled there together before the window, She was holding me tight by the collar I was terribly excited and scarcely know how it happened, but the next thing I knew we were falling together to the yard below."

After the fall both lingered at the point of death in a hospital in Philadelphia. Kuhn, was put under arrest, on being discharged, was confined in prison. The authorities here informed the Philadelphia authorities last night of Mrs. Kuhn's death, and Kuhn may be indicted for murder. Mrs. Kuhn's remains were removed last night from the Retreat to the home of her mother, Mrs. S. S. Hall, No. 305 South Belvidere Street.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been announced completed.

Statistics of the Way This Country Feeds the World.

The importance of the American farmer is not revealed in its fullest extent until his relation to the world's food supply is considered That relation it may be stated is a very intimate one, as men of all nations would attest if the farmer should suddenly decide to go out of business and live on the gains of the past two years. Then the old adage "Half a loaf is better than none," might find a more literal interpretation than in this well-fed age.

One cannot travel through the big wheat farms of the northwest without being wonderfully impressed with their show of industry and enterprise. They give the farmer his most favorable background. But it is necessary to resort to dull statistics to know the part played by the agriculturists of the United States in guarding the world from a perpetual hunger, to say nothing of the American cattlemen.

To begin at once on facts, the American farmer is responsible for annual exports aggregating in value $300,000,000 for cereal alone. This, be it remembered, is after catering to a very heavy home demand. The largest single item is furnish by wheat. Corn, cornmeal and flour contribute the other parts. Last fiscal year was a record one for flour, when 18,485,620 barrels were shipped. The number of bushels of wheat was 139,432,815. In 1891 the amount of wheat was 161,000,000 bushels, which is the greatest total of which any account is to be had. During 1897-98 the exports of corn amounted to 208,744,000, which was the record in that cereal up to that time.

If one wishes to show the stupendous results of agrarian labor one should turn to the figures given in the last annual report of the New York Produce Exchange, which contains export figures since 1831, when records were first available. Since that year the value of the cereals sent abroad from the United States has footed up to over six billions of dollars. This means that something like 4,300,000,000 bushels of corn and wheat have been sent out of the country to supply deficiencies in the food products of European nations.

There has been a gradual development in these sixty-eight years, with several periods of very rapid expansion. For instance, in the five years ending with September, 1835, the amount of wheat exported was only 614,145 bushels. The output of flour in that interval was 5,241,964 barrels. By 1865 the wheat exports had risen to a total of 138,306,000 bushels; ten years later they were 224,019,376 bushels, doubling in the fiveyear period following.

The best prices that the farmer has received for his wheat came between 1865 and 1870, when he averaged on the five years $1.43 a bushel. The average between 1890 and 1895 was 82 cents. In 1895 he only received 65 cents for what wheat he sent abroad, and shipped out 40,000,000 bushels, less than one-third of last year's export total.

An interesting study from the figures given in the report has been made of the proportion of wheat shipped as flour to the total since 1831. In that year it reached 97.2 per cent. The ratio fell rapidly until 1889, when the percentage was only 18.84. Last year it was 40.68 per cent.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Heavy Shoes.

A woman who is a victim of the big shoe habit says that when she took a trip west a few weeks ago she wore her "comfortable," heavy-soled, rubber-heeled calfskins. In the sleeping car she gave orders to the porter to black them. As her berth was the first one from the little chicken-coop place in which the porter attends to his odd jobs, she had no difficulty in overhearing a little conversation which took place between him and two of the men passengers.

"They calls 'em golf shoes, don't they?" the porter remarked.

"I guess so," replied one of the men. "They're just strong-minded shoes. The women are getting sensible. High time, too."

"Look lak they made out o' cowhide," the porter commented. "Lawd look at them soles; 'bout four inches thick."

"Must be a mighty big woman," put in the other passenger. "Bet she weighs 200 if she weighs a pound. I never saw such shoes in my life. Think she'd have to have derricks to lift them up with."

But the eavesdropper fell asleep right here. In the morning three pairs of eyes looked curiously at her feet and then took in a slender little 103-pound figure. She said it was really amusing.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Danger of the Season.

Mr. Rider Haggard, in "A Farmer's Year," tells a sad story about a Yorkshire gentleman who was one of a shooting party watched by a lot of miners.

A number of these gentry attached themselves to him so hard that he grew nervous and began to miss freely At length the last and great stand of the day was reached, when, just before the beat began, a ferocious and peculiarly powerful miner advanced and whispered hoarsely in his ear: "Look 'ere, gov'nor, you're shooting horful, and I've lost three bob on yer. But I've backed yer double or quits, and, by gosh! If I don't win this time I'll knock yer bloomin' 'ead off."

What is that which increases the more you take from it?—A hole.

CAPTAIN BEN AND HIS ENEMIES.

Captain Ben Tillman, of South Carolina is rather a dangerous animal to corner. He can hit back more fast and furiously than is safe for the gentlemen who are conducting the chase for his scalp. Captain Ben is the great untamed statesman of South Carolina. His intellect is ragged, gnarled, and tough, but as active as lightning. He is of terrific dynamic force, but as ungraceful in thoughts and deeds as a bull. His ideals are low and his aspirations heartless; his soul is as infinitesimal as his animal courage is great and his brain strong and active. He is a powerful man; strong, but not gentle. Only a touch of heart and a little less of the animal, and nature had made of him a great man. But alas, nature is not always a perfect architect, and environment too often trumps her deals.

Whatever may be said of the untamed statesman from the Palmetto State, it is certain that he is not a safe man for his enemies to get in close contact with. If it happens to be a war of words as is the present case in South Carolina, Captain Ben is going to say some things that will cut and slash and bare open the wounds. The South Carolinians are now in the midst of a campaign in which the prohibitionists, the saloonists and the local optionists are all waging unmerciful warfare upon the State's dispensary system. All these, of course, are actuated by different objects, but they all make their attack upon one object. Col. Hoyt is the candidate they are supporting on the pledge that he will do all he can to destroy the dispensaries, and some observers think he has a chance of election.

Tillman is fighting furiously against them and in behalf of the dispensary system. The preachers are against him solidly, especially since he has accused them of being in league with the saloonist. Captain Ben is now going through the toughest tussle he has had in some time, and the outcome is not clear. It looks as if the whole crowd is against Tillman. But Tillman is a dynamo and may yet shock somebody.

Our very excellent weekly neighbor, the Greensboro Patriot celebrates the victory with the largest rooster that we have yet seen. It also has one of the best editorials on the election that has appeared. From it we clip this sentence:

The idea that the South is best capable of settling her own social and economic questions seems to be fast gaining ground beyond the Potomac, and in a few years the mention of a constitutional amendment in a southern state will not throw the north into hysteria.

Some of the newspaper boys are rather tumbling over themselves in the advocacy of certain men for United States Senator to succeed Butler. This is rather soon it seems to us, as the primary will not be held till the November election. It's a question that we are not yet much interested in anyway. We should like to see an honest man of some ability occupy the place.

WESTERN LIBERTY AND THE ORIENTAL ARTICLE.

We have never known anyone to say that Mr. Bryan is not a man of common sense. We have always regarded him as such, and hence have been surprised at his position regarding the Philippines. There is little doubt that he wrote this plank of the Kansas City platform just as it was adopted. It is exactly his antithetic style. He says that we must set them up in self-government and then afford them protection. So far as we have seen, he has not yet assigned any reason why we should become responsible to foreign powers for their acts after we had accomplished the task of setting up for them, and turning over to them, a government. Since this is the declaration of the platform, the following assertion, that the Filipinos are holding on in the hopes of Democratic success, does not seem unreasonable or unkind:

"If Bryan is defeated at the polls in November," said Dr. Sanger, who has practiced medicine in Manila for six years, "the Filipino rebellion will crumble away like a house of cards. It is only kept alive by the hope that the Democrats will be successful in the November elections. The Filipino people are sick and tired of fighting Aguinaldo would gladly quit if he could, but his associates are holding him off in the hope of getting terms from the Americans. It is money they want, and they would sell out the revolution, just as they sold out the previous one to Spain. A million dollars divided among these leaders would bring peace in forty-eight hours, and they have in some way got the notion that the money would be forthcoming in the event of Bryan's election.

"Aguinaldo is a greatly overrated man. He is, in fact, the cheapest kind of a Tagal native, treacherous and dishonest, as all Tagals are. It is only a few years ago that he was a house servant. He was so unreliable that the police took his credentials from him, and he became a fish monger. The priests taught him to read and write, and this accomplishment gave him standing as a great man among his ignorant associates. He is naturally bright and crafty, and in the rebellion against Spanish rule he soon became a leader. The money he got for selling out his cause made him rich, and placed him at the head of the present revolutionary forces.

"The Filipinos are no more capable of self-government than the American Indians are capable of conducting the government of the United States. The Tagals are the only tribe that make any pretense to education, and only a very small portion of them can read and write. In point of numbers they are one of the weakest tribes in the Philippines, and as they are hated by the other tribes, there would be constant war should the Tagals attempt to govern the islands. The desire for self-government is confined to a few unscrupulous leaders, who would rob the country and then escape to live in luxury in Paris or some other European capital, while the powers of the Old World gobbled up the islands. No one familiar with the Philippine Islands has the faintest idea that a Filipino government is even remotely possible."

Those may laud the patriotism of Aguinaldo who may, but they must do it in the face of the bald fact that he sold out to the Spaniards and left the island for good, and on returning to it the only excuse offered for breaking his dishonorable bargain is that he did not get all the money promised him. Suppose we set up a government and withdraw, how long before that government sustained only upon oriental ideas and customs ingrained in the race, would lapse into the usual oriental despotism? The Filipino will have no liberty unless the United States stays there and gives it to him. What matter to him whether it is outside or inside the Constitution? The civil and personal liberty that the natives would enjoy under a government by the United States Congress would be a godsend of freedom compared to what they would get under a petty despotism of Aguinaldo or any other native. People sometimes relinquish the substance and grasp the shadow. The Filipino knows nor cares what political freedom is, what he wants is personal and civil liberty, and humane laws justly administered.

It is a great pleasure to The Telegram that so many of the Democratic papers have come out in so emphatic a manner in opposition to the proposition to make the national campaign in this State upon the color line. The press of this State is the greatest factor in moulding public sentiment, and it owes it to itself and to the public interest of which it is the especial guardian, to prevent the consummation of this belittling proposition.

We are glad to see the disposition of the Democratic press of the State to give due credit to all the white people of the State who united with regular Democracy in making possible such a victory as was won on the second. It was not strictly a party victory. It was was a broad-guage white man's victory.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Killed by a Train.

A white farmer was killed at Climax yesterday afternoon by the Wilmington train. SOMETHING OF INTEREST.

Prince Eui Wha, second son of the Corean King, arrived at San Francisco on Saturday in charge of Second Secretary Sin Ta Moo, of the Corean legation at Washington, and the secretary said the Prince was going to school at Roanoke, Va. The Prince, however thinks San Francisco a good enough place for him and its Tenderloin a better school than any in Virginia. He dresses well and, having plenty of money, he has set a hot pace since he struck town. The secretary vainly tried to curb his propensities for high rolling, and the matter reached a climax when the Prince declared his independence and refused to go to the Virginia school.

Bourke Cockran will vote for Bryan and Stevenson. He will also take the stump for the Kansas City ticket. This statement is not made on Mr. Cockran's authority. He again refused to be interviewed on the political situation or to make known his intentions. When he was asked if he would support Bryan and Stevenson, he replied:

"I may give my views on the issues before the people in a few days. When I arrive at a decision I generally give the reasons for my action.

"Then you have decided how you will vote?" he was asked.

"I decided that on July 4," was the reply.

Shot Himself Rather Than be Rescued.

Atlantic City Dispatch, Aug. 6.

An unknown young man, about 21 years old, with a dozen others boarded the cat-boat Edith at the Inlet wharf for an hour's sail late this afternon.

The yacht then proceeded out to sea amid cheers and rag-time music from a banjo in the hands of a negro. A stiff wind blew up the waves, rocking the craft, which more than pleased the plasure-seekers.

When the Edith trimmed sail to turn for home, about five miles out, the unknown man went to the bow of the boat and stood there a moment. Then, shouting "good-bye," he dove into the water. He soon reappeared and floated on his back. Capt. Parker turned the yatch and made for the man. As they neared him he drew a revolver from his pocket and facing the excited captain and the passengers, laughed and pulled the trigger, blowing his brains out.

Capt. Parker stood about, but the body was not seen again. Captain Parker reported the case to the police. The suicide was of small build, cleanly shaven, had chestnut brown hair and weighed about 125 pounds. He was dressed in a blue serge suit, negligee shirt and black slouch hat.

Shop Newly Equipped

I have just completed equipping my shop with power and machinery for doing all classes of repair and new work. I am now amply prepared for doing heavy wood work, and also heavy forging. When in need of any kind of repairs very often the time saved by having it done promptly will pay for the same; and besides machinery does work better and cheaper than muscle.

I am now prepared to build on short notice any kind of a wagon you may want—a heavy dray, light spring wagon, or a farm wagon.

Here is a fable for the man who doesn't advertise: "A duck which had laid several dozen eggs during the season, complained that while her working record was more than the hen's, the latter had books and poems written in her honor while no one had a word of praise for the duck." A wise old rooster standing by said: "You lay an egg and then waddle off without saying a word, while that sister of mine never lays one without letting everyone in the neighborhood know about it. If you want to cut any ice around here, you must advertise."

ABOUT THE STATE.

Walter A. Moore, Esq , of Jackson, Representative-elect, will be a candi, date for Speaker of the House of the next Legislature.

The Democratic convention for the ninth congressional district met in Asheville yesterday and unanimously re-nominated W. T. Crawford for Congress. J. D Murphy was elected chairman of the congressional committee and will conduct the campaign. In his speech of acceptance Mr. Crawford said he would ask a joint discussion with the opposing candidate.

A freight train which left Winston at 10:30 yesterday for Charlotte was wrecked near Clemmonsville. The accident was caused by spreading rails. The train ran a quarter of a mile with one car off the track. When it stopped nine cars had left the rails and gone together in a mass. The singing class from the Oxfore Orphanage, 16 in number, including the manager, were in the caboose, which did not leave the track. Their escape is considered by the railroad people to be miraculous. The orphans were on their way to Mocksville to attend the annual Masonic picnic.

THE GOOD COUNTESS

CAREER OF A NOBLE GERMAN WOMAN.

She Cares for the Body as Well as the Soul of Those Who Need—Sketch of Her Life and Her Noble Work All Over the World.

Think of a noble woman, born in a castle, who basks in the sunshine of royal courts, who is smiled upon by haughty Empresses and fawned upon by time-serving courtiers. Imagine her forsaking all these, bidding farewell to her life of luxury and all the pleasures which come with such a position, facing the world, almost alone, that she may carry comfort to the lowly, cheer to the hungry and the Word of God to the unregenerate.

All this, and more, has come to pass in the career of Adeline, the Countess Schimmelmann, of Denmark. For years this gentlewoman has sailed from place to place, her purse and her kindly words ever ready to make easy the thorny path of the unfortunate. No sect nor nation may claim her; whether in the Baltic Sea or on the Great Lakes among those of her nationality or not, her kindly heart overflows with sympathy; she cares for the body as well that the Empress frowned on exthe deck of her yacht before an exhortation to righteousness.

Ostracism confronted her when she first took up this work; not for a minute did this deter her. After some years she was kidnapped by her own brother, who could not believe his sister was in her right mind when she mingled with the drunkard, the ne'er-do-well, the Godless. He had her locked up in an insane asylum; there she remained for months until her friends obtained her release. Undeterred, she entered into her work with redoubled vigor; she extended her field; in 1 98 she came to this country.

"I was born in the Castle of Ahrensburg, in Hollestein, on July 19, 1854," she says. "My father was a Danish Count and peer of the realm. My mother was German. My father was international in his ideas of education. We had French and English, as well as Danish and German, governesses, and I became proficient in all these languages.

"When I was young I was taken to visit at the German court. Empress Augusta took a deep interest in me and asked me to spend several months with her. From that day I divided my time between the Imperial Palace of Germany and my Danish home. I became the pet of the Empress, her first maid of honor. This gave to me privileges none of the other women of the court were allowed to enjoy; I could go and come at my own pleasure. For eighteen years I was at the court, participating in all its brilliant functions. I remember distinctly when Gen .Grant and Mrs. Grant were there that I had a long conversation with the General in the palace.

At the German court the Countess was imbued with those ideas which led her to renounce the world and its pleasures. She never was of the gay set; she does not tell it, but it is related that the Empress frowned on excessive gayety.

A genial, sweet-tempered woman is the Countess. She does not look her 45 years; there is not a gray strand in her brown hair; her eyes of blue are kindly and bright; her complexion as rosy as it was three decades ago. As gentle mannered as may be, there is a quiet dignity in her carriage and actions. Her English is all the more delightful because of a decided accent, but she is a fluent, animated talker. There is no home to which she prefers to her yacht, which, by the way, is schooner rigged and of fifty-three tons register.

Of her work the Countess said:

"I visited fifty-eight cities last year. My plan is to enter a harbor and let the sailors and harbormen know of our presence, have them curious about the yacht and about myself. I then go ashore and if I can rent a hall I speak to the sailors. I try to induce them to give up drinking; the better to do this I establish coffee houses, if possible. I am never patronizing, and the fact that I have left my life of ease behind me and am spending my fortune to advance the cause has much to do, I feel, with winning some of the most hardened ones over to righteousness.

"I have gone from city to city, hoping my example would lead other women to do likewise. I never take up collections at my meetings. I have had contributions from the Queen of Denmark, who died recently, and also from the Princess of Wales."

Asked as to her observations in different cities and in this country, as opposed to the Old World, the Countess replied.

"There is no city so bad as Berlin for drunkenness. Hamburg and all the German towns are most intemperate in the matter of drink. My work in Germany is hard, where even the Christians condemn and ridicule me for advocating temperance. The poverty and intemperance are vastly greater in Old World cities than in America, for here the women are actively engaged in good work. They have told me here in America that some of your cities are wicked. But they cannot exceed the vice and misery of the cities on the other side, and I know, for I have labored in their prisons and slums."

TOLD BY THE CIRCUS MAN.

The Greatest of All Giants Enters in the Farmers' Mowing Matches.

"If anything," said the old circus man, "the great giant used to come out strongest in competitive contests. You see, there he showed for not only what he was, but even greater, by the contrast. Of course, he was always in contrast, but here the contrast was made more striking; but we never failed to enter him in any sort of a competitive contest that we could get him into. Mowing contests, for instance, the giant was very strong in; and we never missed an opportunity to put him into one of these when we could. The old man was always on the outlook, sharp, for this sort of thing, in any form, and if he ran up against a mowing match coming off, say the day the circus struck the town, he'd get the old man into it somehow, sure; not, of course, entering him as a giant or a big man, or anything of that sort, but simply as an unknown. He used to go equipped for this mowing business.

"I suppose that the average scythe-blade would be three feet or thereabouts in length, and the snath maybe four feet and a half long. Well, now, the giant's scythe had a blade about ten feet long and a handle about fifteen. Those farmers would get together in a grass lot to see what a man could do, say, in half an hour, everything to count; width of swath, forward cut, cleanness and evenness of the mowing, and so on. I suppose that a man might cut a swath five feet wide, possibly more, but more likely less, and his cut as he stepped forward with even swings of the sharp scythe might be a foot to eighteen inches. The young farmer, and some old ones, too for that matter, would try, one after another, in this competition, every man swinging along in fine style, till pretty much all of them had had their chance at it and then they'd begin calling for the unknown, an then we'd bring up the giant.

"And he never failed to make a sensation when he appeared; but when he stepped into the field and took off his coat and tossed it into the wagon alongside the lot, and took his scythe out of the wagon, with its ten-foot blade and fifteen-foot snath, and rolled up his sleeves and took the scythe and set to mowing, then there was a sensation. Talk about cutting a wide swath! Why, you ought to see the giant! The farmers cut maybe five feet, the giant fifteen. They'd step forward a foot or a foot and a half with every sweep, the giant four or five feet. And he was a good mower, too; cutting close and even and clean from side to side. Just think of it, will you!—a man cutting a path fifteen feet wide and going forward five feet at every stroke!

"Pretty soon the giant would stop and pull a scythe-stone out of his bootleg—this stone was three feet long, as long as an ordinary scythe blade—and sharpen his scythe with it; and then he'd drop the stone in his bootleg and go to mowing again. And pretty soon he'd get dry and want some cider; and that's where he used to come in again with business. We had a jug that was as big around as a barrel in the biggest part of it, and that was pretty near as tall, but a regular jug in shape, and we used to get this over the fence to him wherever he was, and he'd lift that up as easy as coud be and turn it up, looking like a balloon up there turned up in that way, and take a big, long drink and then set it down and go to mowing again.

"Well, when the giant had got through mowing there wasn't likely to be much grass left in that lot to mow, and there never was any doubt about who'd won the prize. And he used to cut as wide a swath among the farmers as he did in he grass. There wasn't a farmer for miles around but used to come to the show and bring his family. Maybe they'd ha' come anyway, but the giant's mowing hit 'em hard; and as for the rest of the community, why, it just simply got 'em all.

"My, my; but it makes me sigh to think of the great old giant."—N. Y. Sun.

The long-expected consolidation of the sheet mills of the country is now under way, and it is expected it will be completed by April 1. A committee of the manufacturers has commenced work on the project, and it is understood that Judge W. H. Moore, of Chicago, who so successfully promoted the Tin Plate, Steel Hoop and other trusts, is at the head of the scheme.

A new plan for industrial colonies is to be tried in Southeastern Kansas, where coal, wood, gas and farm lands will be acquired by a community of laboring people who are seeking homes with congenial surroundings at a small cost of outlay. The projectors of this colony have fully taken into consideration the ups and downs of former attempts, and are very confident that the new plan will insure a rapid and grand success. Labor exchange principles will be applied to all public utilities, while the individual rights of each will be protected and encouraged in every respect.

A WOMAN OF FASHION

WHAT SHE OFTEN SPENDS FOR APPAREL.

Things Seen in the Big Stores of New York—Articles for Use and for Ornament—A Handsome and Tasteful Costume.

(New York Letter.)

Blanche Walsh, the actress, was recently reported as saying in defence of the fair debtor, Mrs. O'Neill, that $50,000 a year is not too much for a woman of fashion to spend for her apparel.

It would seem that there are many women in New York who enjoy a like allowance, judging by the way purchases are made in the big department stores. It is not strange that the stylishly gowned model looks at you scornfully when you ask her for a modest coat for $20 that must last you two seasons, where she has just suavely waited upon a carriage customer who has bought a simply stitched cloth coat for $125. That coat is simple enough to suit your humble needs, but the price falling upon unaccustomed ears seems tremendous, even for the "latest." In silks, clothes, trimmings, the same extravagance is visible this season.

It is a pleasure for the artistic woman to merely wander through the aisles of the shops and feast her eyes on the glorious color schemes. For instance, one well known store had an immense window artistically arranged with gray for the motif. Only a window dresser worthy of the large salary paid him could arrange such a multitude of small articles in such a harmonious picture. There were pocketbooks, card cases, picture frames, every imaginable desk appointment, made of the softest shade of gray leather, monkey-skin and elephant hide. There were lovely chatelaine bags of gray suede, the tops heavily beaded with cut steel, and clasps of silver with the dull finish at the moment so fashionable.

Quite by itself was a tray of articles made of gun metal. A watch made of this material is very chic when fastened on the lapel of a tailor-made gown of dark gray Oxford. Apropos of gun metal, there are shown so many pretty articles suitable for men which later will serve as Christmas gifts. There are match boxes, set with diamonds and rubies, pencil and pen holders, card cases, etc.

The stores are displaying Christmas novelties but at present the majority of buyers are completing their winter wardrobe.

Since box and automobile coats have been approved by leaders of fashion, we must follow like sheep. They will not become very common at present for the prices are kept way up. The long coats are very becoming to some women. I saw a shining black cloth Newmarket in a Broadway car the other day. It was perfectly plain, with strapped seams and fitted the plump wearer to perfection. But alas! When she rose to leave the car, a bit of draggled white chiffon on the trailing skirt destroyed the effect and proved to me, at least, that long coats are incompatible with trailing street gowns, holding the clinging folds close about the wearer's heels.

It would seem that the craze for steel beads and spangles will soon show some signs of abatement when some of the cheaper grade stores are selling spangled belts and collars for 69 cents each. At the same time they are very pretty with a plain gray or black frock.

I saw a woman on Fifth avenue the other day whose costume would have delighted Edmund Russell and the other aesthetic critics. It was a symphony in brown, for she carried out in her costume her own coloring. Her hair was fair, her eyes reddish brown and her skin dazzlingly white. The dress was a soft shade of brown cloth. The sleeves and vest were of a taffeta of exactly the same shade and were elaborately stitched. The revers were of heavy biscuit colored lace over brown taffeta and were edged with mink. Her toque was a little beauty. The soft round crown was stitched with white silk in concentric lines. A single stitch caught it in the center. Around the brim were breasts that seemed to show every conceivable shade of brown manifest in the costume. In front were a few velvet loops lined with white taffeta. A muff and scarf of mink completed this really tasteful costume, a delight to the eye after seeing huge bunches of purple violets on national blue toques, and other equally hideous color combinations.

Stitching, fur and lace still are in the lead as the fashionable garnitures, and scallops appear in every conceivable place. A beautiful chinchilla cape is made with three rows of scallops, giving the appearance of a triple cape. It seems a pity to make up this lovely fur in such a fashion but the prevalent idea in New York, now and always, is for something new, no matter how incongruous or grotesque the combination may be. We have not as yet come to the point of wearing stuffed mice, but I presume, if they were as scarce as Russian sable, we should be envying the happy possessers of them.

A pretty fancy vest is made of white chiffon, strapped across with narrow black velvet, a tiny steel buckle on every strap. Small steel buttons serve a like purpose.

Fashions change in jewelry as in all else and while one authority claims that only the engagement ring should be worn with the wedding ring, while the other rings should go on the little finger, there is another who says marquise rings are most fashionable and should be worn on the forefinger. The turquoise is losing its prestige because of its easy imitation, but the happy maid who is wealthy enough to have a muff chain set alternately with emeralds, rubies and diamonds, has the quiet satisfaction of knowing that her treasure is above criticism.

No External Symptoms.

The blood may be in bad condition, yet with no external signs, no skin eruption or sores to indicate it. The symptoms in such cases being a variable appetite, poor digestion, an indescribable weakness and nervousness, loss of flesh and a general run-down condition of the system—clearly showing the blood has lost its nutritive qualities, has become thin and watery. It is in just such cases that S. S. S. has done some of its quickest and most effective work by building up the blood and supplying the elements lacking to make it strong and vigorous.

"My wife used several bottles of S. S. S. as a blood purifier and to tone up a weak and emaciated system, with very marked effect by way of improvement.

"We regard it a great tonic and blood purifier."—J. F. DUFF, Princeton, Mo.

SSS is the greatest of all tonics, and you will find the appetite improves at once, strength returns, and nervousness vanishes as new rich pure blood once more circulates through all parts of the system.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. It contains no minerals whatever. Send for our free book on blood and skin diseases and write our physicians for any information or advice wanted. No charge for medical advice.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

CLEANING THE HOUSE AND KEEPING IT CLEAN.

How to Get Rid of the Pestiferous Germs that Breed Disease—Why Women Wear Out So Fast—Ill Health and Ill Temper.

We don't clean house now because we are "finicky," but because we want to be rid or deadly bacteria, says a writer in the Ohio Farmer. Even the old time annual house cleaning is not sufficient nowadays, for as a sanitary measure we must chase pestiferous germs in the autumn as well as in the spring. The soil that proves most congenial for their culture is being manufactured day and night, and is made up of the fluff that constantly accumulates in cracks and out of the way corners from clothing, carpets, bedding, the minute scales of epidemics constantly thrown off by the skin, as well as from soot and ashes and the impalpable dust sifting in from doors and windows. The invisible cloud envelops us constantly, irritating throat and lungs, but becomes dangerous only when left undisturbed to foster by moisture its broods of disease.

The modern housekeeper goes about the task quietly and methodically, choosing a convenient day when nobody will be greatly disturbed and cleans and settles one room before attacking another. I do not think it is important just what plan is carried out, providing the rooms are made scientifically clean. Given general principles, each housekeeper must adapt them to her particular needs and environment. Personally, I like to attack the attic first, because it is ready to store any articles not needed for the season, as fast as one comes to them in other parts of the house. That done, I go through the house taking down draperies, etc., that must go through the laundry, and have them all washed together and put away to wait their turn to be hung after the rooms are ready for them.

Choosing a bright day, when the heavy work of the week is over, I determine upon the room to be cleaned, and begin operations early in the morning. If it be a bedroom, remove the bedding out of doors, shaking and beating out the dust thoroughly, then leave it where wind and sun and air will have full sway for hours. Next clear out closets and drawers, shaking and dusting clothing and hanging it also out of doors, looking carefully for traces of moths and taking note of garments whether they are to be discarded, laid away, mended, or made over. Next take down the pictures, dust and clean thoroughly, and put aside in another room, and also one by one each article of furniture. Have the carpet removed and hung on a line in the yard, if possible in a good current of air, and beaten and brushed thoroughly at intervals of an hour or so till all dust possible is removed, then leave it to sun and air till nightfall. The room being empty, sweep down cobwebs from ceiling and walls, and with a clean whisk broom and dustpan go over all the door and window casings, mouldings, and base boards, carefully cleaning out every crevice, then with long, light strokes, sweep the floor. Burn every bit of dust and dirt immediately. When the dust has settled, cover your broom with canton flannel or flannelette and carefully wipe ceiling and walls.

Add a tablespoonful of ammonia to half a gallon of hot water and wash windows and wood work without soap. If you see traces of wood lice or other vermin, give them a dose of strong hot lye applied with small brush or swab to the crevice so as not to injure paint or paper. With a wooden skewer or the dull point of a wire nail clear out the tiny, black pyramids in the corners of window sashes, etc. Lastly scald and wipe the floor, and with windows wide open leave it for an hour or two to dry.

Now, if you are wise, while the floor is drying, you will lie down and rest. Relax your mind as well as your body—think of something pleasant. Take note of your body, and if you find any part of it tense, holding on—let go. The reason women wear out so fast is because they drive themselves beyond the limit, and instead of resting a few minutes as soon as they perceive symtoms of fatigue, they drive themselves to finish the job before they quit, with the result, in time, of ill health and ill temper.

When the floor is dry, lay the carpet and put the furniture and pictures in place; then after tightly closing doors and windows, ignite a pound of sulphur and leave it to burn for a half hour or so, being careful to tightly cork the cracks around the door to prevent the escape of the fumes into other parts of the house. The neatest thing for the purpose is a sulphur candle, (costs 10 or 15 cents), but if you cannot get one, burn sulphur in an old basin placed in a larger one half filled with water. Afterwards air the room ten or twelve hours before it is occupied. Add to a pint of sweet oil, one-third pint of household ammonia shake well together till the mixture looks like cream. Wet a piece of soft, old flannel in a portion of it, and rub the polished surfaces of the furniture. This will remove every stain and streak of dirt and leave the furniture looking like new. It is especially nice for oak furniture, and may be kept for months in a well corked bottle.

In this way, without hurry, without worry, clean each room successively. If you are unfortunate enough to have a large house, plan to take up part of your carpets in the fall, and the rest in the spring. Autumn is the best season for painting and papering, as there are no little flies to annoy, and the paint will look fresh longer and wear better if put on in cool weather.

The cellar needs most careful attention of all, because it is so easy to overlook dirt in its dim light. Allow no refuse to accumulate there; be especially careful to promptly remove decaying vegetables. Sweep, dust, and clean carefully, and after the sulphur bath give the walls a good coat of whitewash. You will be well repaid for all the trouble by the sweet wholesomeness of the place and the superior way in which fruits and vegetables keep their perfection in it.

Woman has a tear for every human sorrow and bushels of them for her own.

Fabulous Figures.

It is generally believed that this year will be a record breaker in things financial, and the country is not surprised to learn that January 3, 1900, reached the high-water mark in clearing house balances in New York, the total that day amounting to $19,788,000, against $19,340,000 May 23, 1899, the next greatest day. This was the direct result of the heaviest dividend and interest disbursements on record. The record for clearings is held, however, by April 11, 1899, when the total was $352,188,200. Bank balances in New York show some wonderful figures from time to time, it being a by no means rare occurrence for several banks to show cash balances of from $1,000,000 to $4,000,000. We are coming into days when the once fabulous is becoming the ordinary in finance.

NEWSY NOTES.

A gas engine estimated to rate at 1,500 horse power is now in course of construction.

Freight train crews on the Northern Pacific recently tied up a division in Montana for five hours while they obtained needed sleep.

The navy yard at Charlestown, Mass., is to have an immense water basin where ships can connect with the Fitchburg Railway.

The Vegetarian's Heart.

The heart of a vegetarian beats on an average 58 to the minute; that of the meat eater, 75. This represents a difference of 20,000 beats in twenty-four hours.

NEWS AND GOSSIP.

A Variety of Subjects Treated in a Brief Manner Here.

A number of negroes are leaving Winston for Virginia to work on a new railroad.

The Gate City Band will give a free concert at the lawn party on the court house lawn this evening.

Capt. J. H. Walsh, who has been indisposed for two or three days, was able to be at his office today.

A full attendance of the members of Greensboro Council No. 13, Jr. O. U. A. M., is desired at the meeting this evening.

All who have promised cake for the union lawn party tonight will please send the same to the court house this evening.

It is announced that the Muir's Chapel camp meeting will commence on Saturday before the third Sunday in August.

The body of K. C. Fort, who died in Reidsville yesterday, was today shipped to Hope Mills, the home of the deceased, for interment.

Mrs. J. P. Harkness, who has been making her home in Charlotte, is to return to Greensboro. She will probably reside on North Davie street.

There will be a regular communication of Greensboro Lodge No. 76, A. F. and A. M., this evening at 8 o'clock. Work in the third degree. Visitors will be welcomed.

Mr. P. T. Klapp has moved his family to Greensboro from the eastern part of the county. They have taken a house on Eugene street. Mr. Klapp will engage in business here.

Travel holds up remarkably well, considering the extremely warm weather. Nearly every train is crowded and the Greensboro hotels are doing a good business. They were all full last night.

The Sunday school excursion from Reidsville to Norfolk passed here about 9 o'clock this morning. It was well patronized, the majority of the crowd being young people and children Several persons boarded the train here.

Johnson & Dorsett offer as special premiums for the Central Carolina Fair one $2.50 lady's silk umbrella for the best collection of hand-painted China; one $5.00 roller tray trunk for the best collection of fancy work made by the person entering it.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.
